Kingfisher Grove residents celebrate their new Clubhouse

Residents of Keyton's Jordan Spring's retirement village, Kingfisher Grove, were joined by their state MP yesterday, to celebrate the grand opening of their new community Clubhouse with walking tours, an official ceremony, music and refreshments.

State Member for Londonderry and Deputy Premier, the Hon Prue Car MP, attended this very special occasion, taking in a walking tour of the new facilities and participating in the official ceremony. Federal member for Lindsay Mrs Melissa Mcintosh was a late apology coming with Kingfisher residents wishing her well for a speedy recovery.

Deputy Premier Car enjoyed the occasion, taking the opportunity to chat to residents and staff after the formalities were complete.

Keyton CEO Nathan Cockerill was pleased to open the new Clubhouse and celebrate this important milestone in the life of Kingfisher Grove village.

"Today has been a great day for the residents at Kingfisher Grove. They are at the centre of everything we do here, and across all Keyton's retirement living communities.

"And it was a pleasure for us to have Deputy Premier Car join the residents for the celebration, as well as our builder Richard Crookes and our architects, IDG.

"We are very proud of the community we have built at Kingfisher Grove, and it is very much a part of the broader community here in the heart of western Sydney," Mr Cockerill said.

"As the number of seniors in western Sydney grow in coming years, Kingfisher Grove is a standout, confident choice for those looking for a high-quality lifestyle, with first class amenities and programs.

"At the moment we have 51 villas and 36 apartments here at Kingfisher Grove, with another 103 apartments in the pipeline.

"By the time we are finished building here, Kingfisher Grove will be home to around 220 residents, enjoying perfect equilibrium between a peaceful retreat and a lively, connected urban existence.

"And all these residents will enjoy access to amazing facilities, including this brand-new Clubhouse complete with indoor heated swimming pool, gym, 42-seat cinema, lounge, pool room, library, outdoor terrace and BBQ area," Mr Cockerill said.

"It was a privilege to be able to officially open this new facility and see the excitement from residents that we have completed this important milestone for their community."
